“ This is a very touching post. One of my friends lost his mother when we were eighteen. I didn't know what to say or how to act. Then my mother got cancer and I was so afraid. Luckily, she pulled through after a year in the hospital. Even though I almost lost her, I still don't know what to tell people when they lose someone close to them. But believe me when I say, I really am sorry. For every person who loses a parent, a spouse or a friend.

“ There was a time when I first started following your posts that I told you I'd be willing to be your friend. I stand true in my words. My heart stands with empathy, instead of sympathy. I can say I know how you feel and be completely honest about it. I have love for you whether or not I know you outside of blogs. I'm sad that you feel sad. I hope the loved one lost finds peace, along with all who grieve over the passing. Even though I'd be the one who'd sit there next to you silently, there will always be people that care, no matter how much of a stranger they are. Much love and well wishes. Alissa

“ I would like to offer the family of Miss Julia Dew, my deepest sympathy for her passing. I pray you will find comfort in Jesus' promise of the earthly resurrection(Acts 24:15)when the dead will be raised up and restored back to life with the hope of eternal life on the renewed Paradise earth.-John 5:28,29; Luke 23:43. Just imagine the joy of seeing and being reunited with your loved one again. Until then may Jehovah God continue to comfort and bless your family, during this time of sorrow.-Matthew 5:4.

“ To the family of Mrs. Dew:
I wanted to send my deepest condolences to your family. May all of the great memories of Mrs. Dew help to ease your pain of sorrow. The Bible speaks of a future resurrection at John 5;28 & 29, which states, " Marvel not at this because the hour is coming in which all those in the memorial tombs will hear (Jesus voice) & come out. We can see our dead loved ones again, right here on this earth but under different conditions (Psalms 37:9,10, 11 & 29). I hope these words can bring you a measure of comfort until the fulfillment of them.
Love,

---
