“ My Dearest friend you will surely be missed, from educating me on our history, to challenging cooking recipes, intrigued about what color toe nail polish I was using next, your Love for the black woman was exhibited. Who would have thought the gentleman loading the Greyhound bus with luggage, and the "E" missing at the end of Marquis (because he and my son have the same name), then stated to me that his godmother Janice who named him shared the same birthday as me, would've lead to this cherishing FRIENDSHIP. It saddens me that I can't come say goodbye, this trip it's not the same because I no longer have to get you a postcard, and a shot glass souvenir. I will cherish the cards you've given me and the memories. You now have the best view of every Cowboys game,
