“ As I think of you, I'm called to remember your hearty laugh, your playfulness (not that it was always appropriate at times) however, it was unique to you, your warm spirit & love for nature -in just being outside especially at the parks as you cleared your mind from the events of the day while having a beer or two.

Maybe pairing that up with some seafood though knowing it would turn on you possible later. A person who seldomly missed a day at work. One who would take all the overtime that was allowed if didn't have other plans or obligations.

Your knowledge & love of music & your openness when your heart was full. I remember the "Gental Giant" in you. A kind person that at times resisted to admit. Showing strength though at times quietly not feeling so strong.

As it has been said, Sometimes the smallest things take up the most room in your heart.

You are gone from our sight but never from our hearts.

*The song is ended but the melody lingers on.
- Irving Berlin*

May his memories be a comfort to the Family.
